

Princeton University Gerhard R. Andlinger Visiting Fellows in Energy and the Environment

The Andlinger Center for Energy and the Environment at Princeton University invites applications for the Gerhard R. Andlinger Visiting Fellows Program, with start dates as early as September 2018. The visiting fellows program is designed to attract distinguished visitors who will enrich the research and/or teaching missions of the Andlinger Center.

Applications from visitors with expertise in the energy/environment sector, from a variety of backgrounds, including academia, industry, government, and/or non-governmental organizations, are encouraged.

Applicants must propose a set of activities designed to enrich teaching and/or research at the Andlinger Center that go beyond simply contributing to the visitor's career development.

Examples include:

- Collaboration with one or more Andlinger Center associated faculty and/or research staff members on topics that are aligned with the mission of the Andlinger Center.
- The visitor guest lectures and/or teaches an Andlinger Center energy studies (ENE) or ENE-cross-listed course, with the goal of having the course material absorbed into a permanent ENE or ENE-cross-listed course ensuring sustained benefit for Princeton students. All teaching appointments require approval by the Office of the Dean of the Faculty.
- The visitor presents a series of talks on areas of interest to a broad spectrum of Andlinger Center associated faculty, research staff and students, and/or organizes/participates in workshops, through which the visitor helps augment the conversation around one of the Andlinger Center's research thrusts:
 - o built environment, transportation + infrastructure;
 - o electricity production, transmission + storage;
 - o fuels + chemicals;
 - o environmental sensing + remediation;
 - o decision science, policy + economics.

Duration & Funding

- Nominal duration for the visit is one academic semester; shorter or longer appointments will be considered on a case-by-case basis.
- Fellows coming without the financial support of their regular employer will be offered full stipend based on experience and/or rank, as determined by the Office of the Dean of Faculty. In accordance with university policy, employment and salary verification is required of all appointees.
